DISSERTATION SUMMARY:

“Aristotle and the Promise of Scientific Politics”

Aristotle says that true assertions in practical philosophy are true “for the most part.” I argue an assertion is true “for the most part” if it refers to the hypothetical realization of a substance’s essential capacities under some set of impediments. The removal of impediments to the full realization of human capacities is the ultimate goal of legislation and political science, and this insight underlies much of Aristotle’s influence in contemporary political philosophy.

TEACHING (INSTRUCTOR OF RECORD):

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

TEACHING:

School of the Art Institute of Chicago (SAIC)

Chicago, IL

Adjunct Professor of Philosophy

September 2021–December 2022

Taught evening online classes on the history of Ancient Greek philosophy, led lectures and discussion, led students to completing final paper throughout semester.

LABOR ORGANIZING:

Northwestern University Graduate Workers (NUGW-UE 1122)

Evanston, IL

Inaugural Chair of Executive Committee

May 2019 – May 2020

Led labor union campaign as one of two inaugural chairs of the executive board. Oversaw successful campaigns to protect lab workers, extend funding for graduate workers during COVID-19 pandemic, and reverse employer-imposed fees on international student workers. Analyzed employer finances from public reports and forms 990, published findings for union workers with an aim towards demonstrating employer's ability to meet union demands. Constructed database of all publicly available financial data by employer (20 years) to facilitate historical comparisons. Invited by striking graduate student labor unions across the country to provide presentations on how to understand their employer's finances, including at Columbia, Brown, and NYU.

LAW:

National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU)

Washington, DC

Office of the General Counsel

Peggy Browning Fellow

May 2024 – August 2024

Led research on issues of administrative law relevant to the agency and department units represented by NTEU. Also focused on issues arising under ADA Title I lawsuits, including writing memos on administrative exhaustion that guided NTEU's litigation strategy.

Chicago News Guild (CWA)

Chicago, IL

Peggy Browning Fellow

May 2023 – August 2023

Wrote and filed Unfair Labor Practice charges related to retaliation against protected and concerted union activities. Prepared parties for NLRB affidavits. Researched and wrote memos on employee discrimination (especially Title VII hostile workplace claims). Prepared and filed appeals of unemployment compensation decisions. Assisted union work actions.
